The number of children and adults diagnosed with Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) has increased markedly in recent years. The workshop will 1. Discuss findings from diagnostic services and 2. It will bring together experience of practitioners of service

Diagnostic overshadowing has often prevented people with ID from getting the help they need for a mental disorder. This essential workshop will present information about current knowledge of prevalence rates of mental illness in people with IDD and through interactive case studies will enable participants to reflect on diagnostic dilemmas in clinical care.

5: Sexuality-Enabling Rights and Choices (13.30-16.30pm)

This dynamic workshop teaches us ways to enhance the sexual rights and choices of people with intellectual disabilities. It challenges us to include sexuality-not ignore it, as we have often done in the past-as a normal human activity. You will learn ways to begin talking about sexuality, understand that changing community and family acceptance is essential to enabling sexual rights of people with disabilities. This is a workshop that is essential for all

6: Parent support and ID (13.30-16.30pm)

Having a child with ID can be both inspiring and a challenge. Parents of children with ID are one of the most underserved in society. The workshop will discuss current approaches to helping parents of children with ID and what services can do to combat stigma and empower family carers.
